

DR. LORENZ HERE TO PAY DEBT OF GRATITUDE TO U. S.

Famous Austrian Surgeon
Soon to Conduct Clinics in New York.

Dr. Adolf Lorenz of Vienna, master of bloodless surgery, who in 1902 through an operation cured Miss Lolita Armour of a dislocated hip, from which she had suffered since birth, is in New York planning to give the benefit of his knowledge in the treatment of such afflictions to the poor of the United States.

Dr. Lorenz, who arrived last night on the French liner Paris and is living at the Murray Hill Hotel, says he came to this country to pay a debt of gratitude from Austria to the United States for the relief our people gave their children, and also as an emissary of the medical profession "to bridge the gap between members of the profession" in the two countries. He plans with his friend and former colleague, Dr. F. H. Albee, of No. 40 East 41st Street, one of the most prominent orthopedists in the city, to perform operations in hospitals and clinics of New York and other cities for deformed victims of infantile paralysis and congenital dislocations without the use of the knife except in rare cases.

He has brought with him a machine, an invention of his own, which, when his own strong hands have not the power, forces into shape obstinate limbs. During the war he spent much time in treating the deformities of soldiers, but children, he said, respond more readily to his treatment because their bones are more plastic.

"My chief work is among the children," he said.

"While their forms are still malleable, wonders can be worked with them. In addition to the operations I perform here, I hope to demonstrate also to physicians who are interested in orthopedic surgery the various methods I use, and especially my newer forms of treatment and the use of the machine, which is a simple combination of screw and cross bar. No arrangements have yet been made for Dr. Lorenz to conduct his clinics in New York. He consulted to-day with Dr. Albee, who said an announcement concerning the plans of Dr. Lorenz would be made in a few days.

Dr. Lorenz's operations on Miss Armour, who is now Mrs. John J. Mitchell Jr., was made eighteen years ago and astounded the medical profession because it was thought she was doomed to be a hopeless cripple. Later Dr. Lorenz came to New York and performed more than fifty similar operations in hospitals and clinics here, most of them being considered highly successful, but at that time was unable to perform all the bloodless operations which scores of parents begged him to undertake. Ten disappointed mothers of crippled children who waited for him outside the hospitals.

SCOLDED BY MOTHER, GIRL DRINKS POISON

Nellie Gallo Had Been Found by Police.

Fifteen-year-old Nellie Gallo of No. 2 Price Court, Brooklyn, had an invitation for a party last night, and so she would.

A bit of strategy was required, but she managed it, for when she left her home at noon she was wearing a party dress concealed under her everyday clothes. Before night the police had a description of her and were watching for her all over town.

It was 5 o'clock this morning when Patrolmen Corcan and Redden were told that a girl had been walking up and down the elevated station at Navy Street and Myrtle Avenue for a long time, letting train after train go by without boarding any of them. She answered the description and admitted her identity. So they took her home.

Her mother scolded her when she came in and she ran to the kitchen and drank some iodine. Corcan knocked the bottle from her hand and Redden called an ambulance from the Cumberland Street Hospital, where the girl was treated. She is recovering.

EGYPTIANS FAILED ON REPRESENTATION

Britain Insisted Relations Be Conducted Through Commissioner—Return of Unrest Feared.

LONDON, Nov. 21. (Associated Press).—Although British official circles decline to comment upon the termination of negotiations with the Egyptian delegation, until Adly Yeghen Pasha, head of the delegation, reports to the Sultan, it was learned to-day that the delegation departed for Cairo last Saturday convinced of its failure and anticipating the return of unrest and internal disorders in Egypt.

The reason for the failure is ascribed by some critics to unwillingness of the Foreign Office to carry out the recommendations for self-government made last February by Lord Milner, former Colonial Secretary.

The question which produced the deadlock is believed to have been that the head of the Egyptian delegation held out for the appointment of a British Ambassador to Egypt and for the appointment of ministers from other countries. The British insisted that Egypt's foreign relations be conducted through the British Commissioner.

MAAS DENIES LIQUOR CHARGES

O'Brien Will Not Suspend His Claim Examiner, Pending Hearing in U. S. Court.

Edward Maas, the $1,900 a year claim examiner in Corporation Counsel O'Brien's office, who was arrested Saturday for alleged participation in a plot to defraud the Government by the release of liquor in Chicago, will be questioned by his chief to-day, but will not be suspended pending his hearing before the United States Commissioner next Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A positive order was issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day requiring railroads to put the approximately 16 per cent. decrease in hay and grain rates into effect on or before next December 27.

FISHING FINE, POLICE ALSO HOOK BOOTLEGGER

While Waiting to Catch Man, They Get Enough Whittling for Station.

Detectives Craddock and Lau told Magistrate Dale in the Coney Island Court this morning that fishing was fine at midnight at Steeplechase Pier. They said they had caught not only enough whittling for all the cops of the Coney Island Station but also a bootlegger. The report had got out that if you fished long enough at that particular pier a man would come along and offer an interesting proposition. The detectives say they had to wait several hours, pulling out whittling by the peck, before Alfonso Malfucci, who says he lives on the Coney Island Bowery, came along and sold them a bottle of anisette for $1.50. He was held in $500 bail for examination on Friday.

Subway Train Hits Girl on Head. Miss Adele Kenner, of No. 1814 Fifty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, received a probable fracture of the skull this morning when on the west platform of the Canal Street station of the B. R. T. subway, she thrust out her head.

just as a Brighton Beach train pulled in.

Nurse Attempts Suicide by Taking Veronal.

Mrs. Edith A. Morrow, a trained nurse, living at the Hotel Nassau, No. 34 E. 29th Street, attempted to take her own life to-day with a dose of veronal. She was found by another nurse in the hotel. Dr. Strausberg, of Flower Hospital, revived her and took her to Bellevue Hospital, where it is said she will recover. Mrs. Morrow, who is fifty years old, left a sealed note for Miss Katherine Dalton, No. 211 W. 11th Street, and another for Miss Gordon, living at the Hotel Nassau. Mrs. Morrow has been ill for six weeks.
